

What is a museum?

A museum is a place where the staff collects, takes care of, and educates people about all kinds of different objects.

Most museums call these objects "artifacts."

Many museums collect only certain kinds of artifacts. One may have only works of art, like paintings or statues, while another may collect things used by American pioneers.

Did you know there is a museum in Wisconsin that collects mustard? It has a collection of over 5,000 containers of it!

The Spurlock Museum is a world cultures museum. We collect things from people all over the world, like clothes, musical instruments, dishes, and religious objects.

Some of the objects in our collections are everyday pieces many people in that part of the world used and others are objects made for special occasions.

It is every museum's job to teach people all about its collections. One of the main ways to do this is by creating exhibits.

Exhibits are places where artifacts—and information about them—are out for visitors to see. Museums often have many rooms, called galleries, with each room holding exhibits that have things in

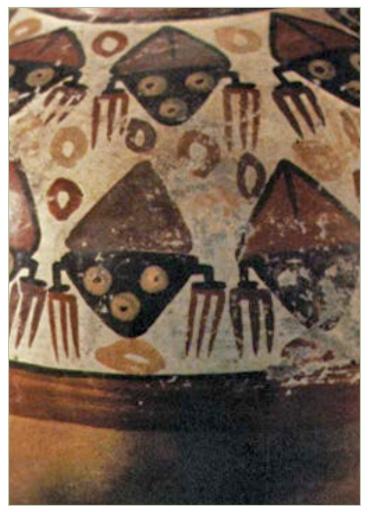

At the Spurlock Museum, there are 5 main galleries plus an introductory area that links them.

The American Indian Gallery

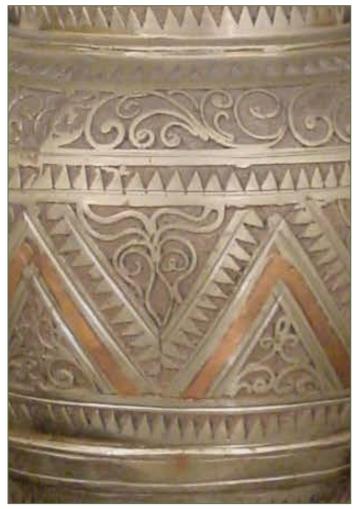

The Ancient Mediterranean Gallery

The Asian Gallery

The European Gallery

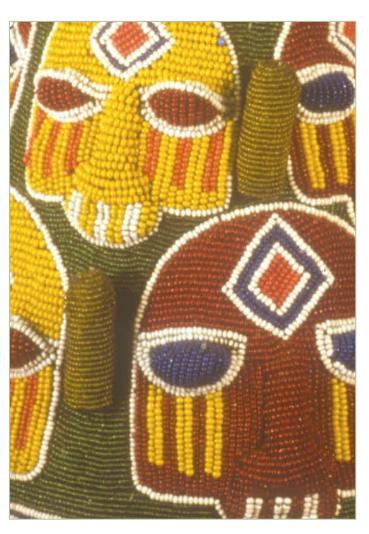

esse possunt tierun. qui proprias in bentur contempnere facultates! Amiro guipiam inpere firiti est. ertlefiam fraudare farrlegui eft. Attepile pauperibus erogandi. et estimentibus plurimis vel tau tum effe nelle vel timidum. a qd apertissimi feeleris est aliquid er moe subtrabere. omnum predonu andelitatem Superat. Ego fame torqueor, et tu mourte quanti be trimeo fatis fite dut dunde fa tim of acceperis, aut fi timidus dipenfator es. Dimitte largitore ut ha fponte upfe diftubnat. 120 lo sub occusione mea facculus tu no plemis fit . Memo me melius mea fernare potest. Dermus dif pensator est qui sibi nichil reservat. ocaisti me Ne pociane cavissi me lapidato iam virginitatis libel to que fante enftochio rome farp feram. post annos decem rurfus bethleem oza referare, et confodre dum me linguis omnit prodere And com midal forbendum fine mene fermo pulfaunt. Denevalis de vians disputatioest. Qui midn wasa voluerit: prius ipse de se qua ho fit conficting Explint adne ponanum de unta derioz. Ina me eplaad rushni monachii Vun whil rpzistiano feli aus an proponun tur regna celozz. mont laborrofins qui rotidie de buta periditative thich il formus qui pontet deabolum: nich il imberillius qui carne superatiu. Parufarer crempla funt plurma. latro wedit in truce et ftatim meret andure : amen dito tibi hodie meni eris in paradifo. Judas de apostola fastigio in producionis tartarii la bitur : et ner familiaritate commu. ner munctione buccelle. ner ofaile qua frangitur: ne quafi homine tindat. quem filmin des noverat. Dinofa mavitana vilnie! 1 on foli ipfa

redidit et post ser vuos vin inue

and the African and Ancient Middle Eastern Gallery

There is also the Campbell Gallery, where the exhibits change a couple times a year, so visitors can see new artifacts they haven't seen before.

In the Asian gallery you can try on clothes, and in the African Gallery, you can play instruments too!

We also have an auditorium, where people can see performers, watch movies, or listen to people talk about things in the Museum...

a Learning Center, where people can do crafts and other activities...

and a Resource Center, where teachers can go to borrow artifacts to take into their

The Museum is open every day except Monday, and it's free to visit.

Come visit us soon!